European colonisation has marginalised the first peoples in industrialised countries such as Australia and Canada. In remote regions still the homes of large Aboriginal, Indian and Inuit populations, this legacy remains strong. Modernisation, the boom and bust model of state and private development and the partial and biased assistance provided by the state have eroded many communities through their disregard for socio-economic structures and the beliefs which underpin them. Third World in the First explores the past, present and future of these peoples, their treatment by the West and the alternative strategies of development which might be available to them.

This book investigates the geopoliticisation of foreign aid in recent years against a background of global overarching crises such as climate change, conflict, COVID-19, economic crisis, energy shortages and migration. Foreign aid has historically been understood as assisting both with the development objectives of the recipients and with the trade and geopolitical interests of the donors. In the first decades of the 21st century, however, this balance has been shifted by a series of complex global challenges. This book argues that donors have now moved towards framing aid as a geopolitical instrument wherein aid can be given or withheld based on power or political intent thus imposing the donor s specific values and norms this book provides an in depth analysis of this weaponisation of foreign aid within a framework of global disruption and ultimately concludes that the world is at a tipping point towards a new socio political world order asking important questions about the power dynamics at play within the aid sector this book will be an important read for researchers across development studies political science international relations and global affairs
